

Assistant Director of Individual Events and Communication Studies Faculty

Basic Function: Serve as Assistant Director of Individual Events in a nationally competitive speech program. Candidates should be prepared to coach and travel to tournaments and to teach the college-wide required introductory oral communication course; with opportunities to teach in an area of specialization. Position responsibilities include student advisement and participation in department and campus committees. This position is for 1-3 years with the possibility of renewal. Rank is dependent on qualifications.

Minimum Qualifications: Must have a master's degree in communication studies, individual events coaching experience and teaching experience. Applicants with graduate assistantships in teaching and/or coaching are encouraged to apply. A philosophy in sympathy with the aims and objectives of a liberal arts college of the Evangelical Lutheran Church of America is necessary. Concordia College has a strong commitment to the principles of diversity, and in the spirit seeks a broad spectrum of candidates whose research or teaching has given them experience working with diverse populations.

Preferred Qualifications: Applicant who have completed a terminal degree in an area of Communication Studies are encouraged to apply.
